History

Students have been learning about communities past and present. We have been looking into changes within our local community and people who have influenced Kapunda over the years and how they have helped shape our community today.

I was born in 1827 at Cornwell.

I was a significant man for Kapunda because I made the first hydraulic car hoist and the weighbridge.

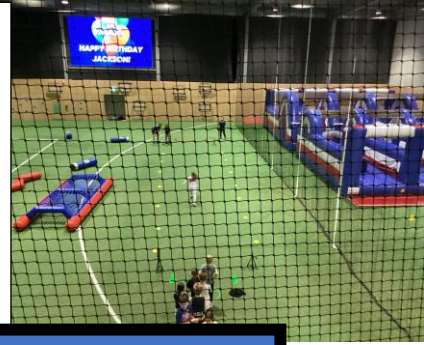

I suddenly died at the North Kapunda Hotel on 17th March 1904 while playing a game of billards.

I was born on April 17 1788 at Nurner House in Ireland.

I arrived in Australia in December 1840 on board the ship known as Birman with my wife and five children.
I joined Dutton to start up the Kapunda mine site in 1844.

I later built a home in North Adelaide and named it Nearney house after where I was born.
I died in July 1880 at 92 years of age.
